Douglas County Insurance and Jefferson County Insurance were recognized at the Nationwide® Agribusiness Insurance Company national sales conference held in Des Moines, IA, as one of the company's leading writers of farm insurance.

The annual FAST Track Conference was held in recognition of top-producing agents in sales of new farm insurance policies during 2009. While more than 8,300 agencies write farm insurance for Nationwide, only 88 qualified for the 2010 FAST Track Conference.

"Farm coverage is a highly specialized line of insurance," said Jerry Hillard, Farm Sales Director, Nationwide Agribusiness Insurance Company, Des Moines. "Only agents who specialize in this highly complex type of business can provide our farm customers with important advice and counsel. Our Fast Track Conference recognizes agents who have made this commitment."

"The award is a reflection of the hard work and dedication of all of our employees and agents," said Travis Oliver.

"Congratulations to Travis Oliver on reaching this level of recognition," said Hillard, "and for his ongoing dedication to the protection of Kansas farmers."

Nationwide Agribusiness is the largest writer of farm insurance in the United States.
